Highlights

In July, Mikayla and I went to a school in Valley of Angels that needed help putting in razor wire. We cut small pieces of wire that would be used to attach the razor wire and shorten some gaps.

I also taught at the CCI women's bible study one Tuesday when the Pastor's wife was away. We went over something I was recently studying, 'Entering into God's rest.'

In August, Discovery School began for Kjell and the kids. It's amazing that Katarina is in high school, Mikayla in 7th, Rebekah in 5th, and Jeremiah in 1st grade. Where did the time fly?

At the end of August and through September, I agreed to substitute teach at Nashville School in the Valley. For five weeks, I taught 7th and 8th grade (Grammar/Writing, Literature, Geography, Science, and Music—with some Bible in there).

It was like 'Little House on the Prairie' with the wooden classroom, absence of paint, windows, doors, desks, and even books! Little by little, item by item, the classroom was transformed.

Before

After

At the beginning of the year, we prepared for the Independence Day Parade. Half the day was devoted to practicing xylophone, practicing xylophone with the band, or playing and marching. I didn't know how they would pull this off in just 3 weeks, but they did an awesome job.

After that, we were busy with a health project, quizzes and finally we were back to 5-7 classes per day of class work, homework, grading, reports to parents, etc. Then, I put together a packet of information for the teacher who returned in October.

The kids were a little bit upset that I was leaving (I was unable to tell them I was a substitute from the beginning) and I received some nice notes and even some earrings. I will visit for the Catracha Fair, other events, and am just a phone call away for volunteer work or substitute teaching.

Because we are blessed to be a blessing, I wanted to do something special for the school. Baking banana bread muffins didn't seem to cut it on my last day, so I took part of my paycheck and purchased clocks for all the classrooms and offices (14!). Then, I asked Kjell to come into school and hang them for me while the kids played on the tire swings and playground.

Also in September, after school activities started at Discovery School. Kjell is beginning rehearsals for the first ever Discovery Play/Drama. This will not only involve rehearsals 1-2 times a week, but the building of a stage. There are about 20 students involved in the play (some acting, some on set, etc.).
